Situation Most Desperate and Officials Fear to Talk About It

PLIGHT OF STRIKERS DECLARED VERY BAD

Chicago Faces Shutdown of Non-essential Industries For First Time

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Confidence that the coal strike will end before next Saturday was expressed here today by men in close touch with the big operators of the central competitive field.

Negotiations between miners and operators, if any are being conducted, are strictly sub rosa. Operators and officials of the operators' associations here refused today to comment on rumors that an attempt had been made to feel out the miners.

"Although I decline to be quoted on this subject," one operators' official said, "I should be willing to wager that the strike will be over within a week. The situation at present is so bad that none of us dares to tell the truth about it for publicity."

This same official said he had been in touch today with mine owners in five different states of the middle west. They reported, he said, that the miners themselves are suffering more severely than people in the cities from the shortage.

He stated that in a number of mining communities the miners have sent committees to the owners requesting permission to mine enough coal to take care of their home needs. This permission was refused.

Chicago faced complete shutdown of non-essential industries for the first time today. The Commonwealth Edison Company announced that it would comply with the order of the fuel administration to shut off power for industries in these classes. The order of the fuel administration was issued Thursday.

In thick heavy snow, Chicago loop workers wrestled with the congestion of 'L' and surface lines today.

Place Embargo on Western Oil For East Next Monday

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The railroad administration today placed an embargo on all shipments of fuel oil, effective December 8th, from western states to points east of Chicago and St. Louis, except for export and for industrial plants which were converted for use of oil prior to November 1.

Necessity for the embargo, the administration explained, arose from the fact that the coal shortage has caused thousands of plants in the east to change their power from coal to oil, which has resulted in heavily increased freight traffic.

The American, it appears, is still technically in custody of the court and must present himself for trial when so ordered.

Hilario Medina, acting secretary of state, said tonight that the latest American note regarding Jenkins is to be answered next week.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Hotels may charge for service or for ice and glasses for guests who bring liquor into the dining rooms for their own consumption without violating the war-time prohibition act, provided there is no sale involved, according to a ruling from the Bureau of Internal Revenue received by the Northern California Hotel Men's Association.

Greatest Christmas Gift Buying Orgy Ever Known

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Christmas shoppers are spending $165,000,000 a day on luxuries, according to government reports. With 21 Fall shopping days this month, the army of gift-seekers is expected to pay out about three and one half billion dollars before Christmas eve. Of this the government estimates it will receive nearly $350,000,000 in taxes or nearly enough to operate it for an entire month.

It appears likely this will be the most extravagant Christmas in history. Retail stores in every section report unprecedented sales. Fur coats costing hundreds of dollars are being sold by the thousands. Jewelry stores are finding it difficult to supply the demand for diamonds, watches and women's ornaments set with precious stones. Music establishments are doing a record business in talking machines and mechanical pianos. Salesmen of all big cities are booking orders in advance for automobiles and accessories.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the postal department for the Christmas rush. Officials plan to handle approximately 250,000,000 packages by parcels post in the 10 days before Christmas.

Exports Increase Despite Nationwide Shortage Reports Show

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The United States is now exporting sugar in larger quantities than ever before, despite the nationwide shortage, latest government reports showed today.

Reports collected by the commerce department explained the situation through October. There is no reason to suppose that exports have dropped since officials said.

Exports in that month totaled 180,197,446 pounds. For October, 1918, exports were 80,105,729 pounds.

Sugar is now being sent out of the country at the rate of more than fifty per cent of the total produced, according to reports to the agricultural department, which show that for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, total production was 2,000,000,000 pounds. Exports for this period totaled 1,119,000,000 pounds.

Whether the factory is to be erected on a site adjoining the Santa Fe or on the Southern Pacific railroads has not yet been determined. Yesterday Wilson held a conference with L. B. Valla, industrial agent of the Southern Pacific, in regard to the project.

As soon as the site is definitely determined upon building operations will begin.

Considerable stocks of fruit pulp are now available at various canneries in Southern California and the Santa Ana Preserving company plans to purchase what quantities of this pulp it requires and to work it up into jams.

Next year, Wilson said today at his office in the Spurgeon building, it is planned to install a line of modern machinery in order to do a general canning business in addition to putting up jams.

Wilson already has established 75 selling agencies in the east.

Wilson formerly was manager of the California Products Company at Orange, having started this concern. He has lived in Santa Ana for two years.

The latest morsel of gossip that is stirring British society is the rumored engagement of the Prince of Wales and Princess Marie of Rumania.

Since the prince has returned from America the rumor has gained more strength but no official confirmation can be obtained from either family.

Princess Marie is a beautiful and talented young woman. At present she is going to school in England and is a constant visitor to the royal palace. She and the Prince of Wales have been thrown much together and formal announcement of the engagement is confidently expected at any time, now that the prince is at home.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—A heavy downpour of rain drenched Washington Park during the morning and shortly before noon it was finally announced that the Fullerton-Long Beach high school football game for the Southern California championship would not be played this afternoon. It will be played next Saturday.

BERKELEY, Dec. 6.—The French are reinforcing their Rhine garrison, according to newspaper dispatches. Several thousand additional troops have arrived at Mayence and Ludwigshafen, the paper said.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A conference of Republican members of the state foreign relations committee called to decide on a course of the Fall resolution directing President Wilson to sever relations with Mexico met today in a two-hour discussion. Senator Borah and Senator Johnson on leaving the conference said no decision had been reached but other members would remain to discuss it further.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Lady Beaverbrook, who before her marriage was Miss Drury of Halifax, N. S., has been invited by the Unionists of Ashton-under-Tyne to stand for the House of Commons for the seat of Sir Albert Stanley, who it is expected will be elevated to the peerage.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—Lady Beaverbrook has started an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the release of William O. Jenkins, American consul agent from the penitentiary at Puebla. Information to the State Department indicates that although Jenkins was released on bail he himself did not deposit the bail, did not know who did deposit it and did not know he was being released on bail until yesterday, 24 hours after his release.

THOUGH VERY WET, GOVERNOR STEPHENS REMAINS VERY DRY

(From the Sacramento Bee.)

The real news of the duck hunt which Governor William D. Stephens, Admiral Hugh Rodman, commander of the Pacific Fleet, and his aide, Lieutenant Commander McCrea, survived on Thanksgiving Day at the West Butte Country Club, Sutter County, is just beginning to leak out.

The governor had paddled the small boat about a mile from shore, and was just adjusting himself to start an offensive movement on a flock of ducks, when ker-plash—

A young size tidal wave caught the little skiff broadside, and over it went, emptying its distinguished occupant into the icy waters of the lake. Walks Mile In Water.

In spite of his chilly reception, the governor did not become flustered, but calmly and very coolly picked his gun out of the mud and made straight for the shore, a mile distant, through the waist-deep, icy water.

Realizing the predicament of Governor Stephens, the shore members of the party, which consisted of Frank Hickman and Frank Newbert, in addition to the naval officers, made rapid preparations for his reception. Balks At Real "Shot."

One of the citizens produced a flask of "high proof," and remarked, "If the governor ever took a 'shot' in his life he'll take one now."

But the prediction was rudely shattered. When the "shot" was offered the governor he politely demurred: "No, thanks, I never use it."

When it came turn for Lieutenant Commander McCrea to sail forth, the wind was blowing a terrific gale. The little boat bearing the lieutenant had gone but twenty feet from shore when it began to rock violently and threateningly, and McCrea beat a hasty retreat back to shore.

"You're a land-lubber, not a sailor," kidded those on shore.

Question As to Appropriations For Conservation Work to Be Up

Next week, probably on Thursday, the district attorneys of Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties are to hold a conference in Riverside for the purpose of discussing a question that has been put up to them by the boards of supervisors and the conservation committee of the three counties.

That question, in brief, is: "Is it lawful for each of these three counties to appropriate a sum of money each year for a series of years to be used in water conservation in the San Bernardino mountains?"

The conservation committee of the three counties consists of three members from each county. This committee decided against taking steps for forming a conservancy district of the three counties, but was favorable to establishing a fund to be used for spreading of storm water, for building check dams and doing other work to conserve water and hold floods in check as far as possible.

The plan suggested was that for the first year each of the three counties appropriate $10,000, making a fund of $30,000 for the first year's work.

District Attorney West of Orange county and District Attorney Duckworth of San Bernardino county are to meet in the office of and with District Attorney Kelley of Riverside county.

HARVARD ELEVEN WAITS WORD TO COME WEST

American, Briton, French Promoter Want Dempsey, Carpenter Bout

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The battle of the promoters now draws near. Three fight impresarios, who seem to have a lien on the Bank of England, the mint of France and the Yankee coin market, are squaring away for a battle royal for the Dempsey-Carpenter match.

C. B. Cochran, London, claims to have the match all lined up for $175,000. Dominic Tortorich, New Orleans, is just as insistent that Dempsey has promised to fight for him for $250,000. On the heels of these comes the French promoter, Decoin, who is playing wise.

"Listen to the offers of the others and then see me," he has cabled to Jack Kearns, according to reports.

The French capital is reported ready to mortgage the nation to get enough money to have its greatest hero fight for the world's title on his home soil.

If Europe has that much money to offer for the world's champion fight, American fans had better not work up too much of an appetite for the battle or they might have to cross the pond.

American promoters will be slow to offer fabulous sums under the conditions which exist in this country. It would take preparations on a Toledo scale and Tex Rickard had such a narrow escape with that venture that other promoters will be slow to rush in on a million-dollar enterprise.

London and Paris both feel sure that America will not get the fight. Cochran is so sure that he has announced June 7 as the date for the scrap in the Olympia.

SAY WINTER SPORTS COMING TO BIG BEAR

A great program of winter sports in Big Bear valley is only a question of a short time, hotel men believe.

H. M. Nickerson, Robert J. Reid, Fred Crosby and Sherman Paddock, four of the big tourist hotel men of the south, have just been in the valley and it is reported, are much impressed with the possibilities. They made a trip to personally investigate conditions, and it is said the growth of the resorts leads to the conclusion that guests can be taken care of as well or better in winter than in summer. A plan of taking care of a few days' program of sports will be worked out, and if it is as popular as is expected, a regular program will be outlined.

TOMORROW'S SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PRACTICAL NOTES PREPARED FOR THE REGISTER

By Cal. Ogburn

Lesson for Dec. 7: Mark 14:30-42 with them. In nothing is the humanity of Jesus more evident than this.

He who ignorantly or otherwise though with the very best intentions, violates this fixed condition, does great injustice to the grief-stricken. The morbidly curious have no right to be where the hearts of men and women are breaking. And yet, to some, a funeral service is, in its way, as entertaining as a theater, while the heart-broken father and mother of a prodigal son or a wayward daughter are subjects of idle, critical gossip. Ah, inconsiderate man and thoughtless woman, consider the sorrowing as you should care for the interests of your very soul.

Sooner or later every soul comes to its "Gethsemane." Without assuming the attitude of a pessimist, it should be noted that a great sorrow awaits all who live long. Even thousands upon thousands of children recently have had the bitter experience of being in Gethsemane. "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn." More problems of life converge at "Gethsemane" than at any other place.

In fact, "Gethsemane" itself is the greatest unsolved problem of the ages. Overwhelming sorrow! One that, like an immense tidal wave, submerges everything. Dazed by it, man has become a mere interrogation point, automatically and mechanically repeating, "Why? why? why?" but finding no answer. Then men have prayed. Yes, men and women who never prayed before, have agonized as did the Master. Still the bitter cup remained to be drunk.

But he is wise who has learned and is practicing the one thing about his great sorrow that all may know—ought to know—and practice: that his own burden is made lighter just in proportion to the assistance he renders to others. Those who selfishly brood over their grief soon hatch a great progeny of smaller discomforts, that speedily reach maturity and have an amazing longevity.

Sorrowful Unto Death
"My soul is exceeding sorrowful even unto death; abide ye here, and watch"—v. 34. The place of sorrow is a sacred place, and those who intrude commit sacrilege. A peculiar characteristic of a deep grief is that it creates on the part of those who must bear it, a strong desire to be alone, and yet to have a few trusted friends near to watch the comforting and the strengthening.

"He cometh, and findeth them sleeping and saith, . . . The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."—vs. 37, 38. There is nothing more beautiful and "fashionable" than "a mantle of charity." It was this that Jesus cast about the three disciples. In the most critical moment of all their relation with him they had failed. And what an opportunity it was for Jesus not only to reprimand but to unmercifully excommunicate them.

And, moreover, with what justice to himself? He had called them from their fishing smacks and a monotonous, uneventful futureless life, with its daily and nightly round of small duties, and had given to them great power and a mountain-top outlook upon a marvelous career. In return for all this, he had made on small personal request: that they watch with him for only a short time.

But instead they had slept at their post of duty! Why not remind them in scathing terms of all that he had done for them and of what he had promised to do, and then charge them with their utter unworthiness? How human this would have been. And how like most of us would have acted. But instead Jesus tenderly placed about them the mantle of charity by saying,

"The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak." And with a breaking heart he did it. For that reason, never before had these disciples received such reproof. What a lesson for the world! It is this: Be ever charitable towards the erring who have good intentions.

And this mantle of charity is much in use, but by those who are trying to cloak themselves with it. Seldom has a culprit stood before the bar of justice or of popular indignation, that he did not at least tacitly accept the plea of being more sinned against than sinful. Adam was the first to put on this mantle "a stone's cast." Maybe the angel that came and strengthened Jesus for the further ordeal through which he must pass would not have come if these disciples had insisted on being with him.

Angel's Place Is Taken
And it is more than probable that many times since then God's visiting angel of consolation has not appeared to those who sorrowed because his place was taken by those who were either morbidly curious, or else were trying to do a thing impossible for any man or woman to accomplish. Do not disregard the sacredness and privacy of grief, but give God's angels a chance to do the comforting and the strengthening.

"He cometh, and findeth them sleeping and saith, . . . The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."—vs. 37, 38. There is nothing more beautiful and "fashionable" than "a mantle of charity." It was this that Jesus cast about the three disciples. In the most critical moments will fail to do in hiding his nakedness. Adam thought the mantle of charity he had made for himself would accomplish. "Whatever your opinion of Eve, Lord God, be charitable towards me!" Ah, Adam, how very unbecoming you look in this hastily-made garment! And there are many "Adams" now ready enough to put on this shrunken, frayed, faded mantle of their own making. Shame! Without equivocation, confess the truth and rebuke the devil. Be charitable towards others, but not yourself.

The Entirely New Grant Six

"The Epitome of Smartness" characterizes this new Grant creation. It is with pride and confidence that we unveil it to the motoring public. In it is embodied the full experience gained from building over fifty thousand light weight sixes.

Specification for Those More Mechanically Inclined

Overhead Valve Six Cylinder Motor, 5-1/2 x 1-1/4 that rates at 23.44 H. P.

Columbia Axles with three-quarter floating in rear.

Improved Stromberg Carburetor and Stewart Vacuum Tank Gas Supply.

Autocar-Kent Ignition and Prestolite Storage Battery.

Borg & Beck Easy Acting disc Clutch, 10-inch size.

Duration transmission, three speeds forward, one reverse.

Two-unit Starting and Lighting System.

116-inch wheel base and 11-inch road clearance.

Equipment includes Boyce Motormeter and Kellogg Power Tire Pump along with tools and tool box.

While this new Grant expresses the light weight principle, it is so much bigger and finer than any Grant Six heretofore built that it brings the Grant Six into an entirely new field from the standpoint both of performance and quality.

Beneath the smart outward appearance, as the illustration tells you, is a chassis that denotes strength, permanent durability and convenience. The motor is powerful, clean and accessible. The frame is extra deep. The springs are unusually long and resilient.

In every instance the value of this new Grant Six is apparent. You should see it if you appreciate real motor cars. It will be on display in the store of B. H. Dyas Co., Seventh at Olive, all the week, as well as in our own show room.

DR. H. W. HEAD

With the death of Dr. H. W. Head last night another of the men who helped to make Orange county and its history has passed out of this life. Though he is dead, his influence and the things he stood for in the pioneer days of the county and in the days of his activity will remain forever as of consequence to this section and its people.

Dr. Head was one of those likeable men of the early days whom everybody knew, and for whom everybody had a high regard. Cheerfully and with optimism he passed through the formative period of the county. Through his experience as a legislator and through a personality that had given him a statewide standing in politics, he was selected as one of the men to go from this county to Sacramento to put through the bill that made Orange county, long a dream of the pioneers, a reality.

While in his public life it was that Dr. Head was most widely known, it was as a friend and neighbor that he is to be longest remembered. His kindness, his hospitality, the genial spirit of genuine friendliness that marked his everyday life, made him a friend indeed.

And it is those characteristics of his that make his going so hard for his relatives and his nearest friends. No words can assuage the grief that his passing brings to them, but there is comfort for them, as there is for all of those who knew him, in the knowledge that he lived a life of good works; that dishonor never stained his name; that he was distinctly worthy of and received many honors in his four-score years of life; that he was trusted and held in honorable esteem by all who had the privilege of knowing him.

CHECKING IT

Chicago is undertaking a vigorous campaign to eliminate "red" propaganda from its schools. Getting rid of teachers and pupils who spread false radicalism and un-American doctrines is, of course, one way of keeping the public schools sane and wholesome in ideals and attitude.

But it is too negative a method to achieve the best, most lasting results.

A teacher in another big eastern city, who comes in contact with pupils from every kind of home, and of both foreign and native-born families, says that she hears every day the most astonishing remarks from some of them. There are bitter complaints against the government, threats and "red" talk of the most violent type. She makes it her business to talk to the pupil giving utterance to such ideas, not to scold, but to learn where he heard them in the first place, and then to show him their folly and to tell him simply and directly what is wrong about them. Wherever she finds a falsehood circulating through the school room she labels it at once and tries to replace it with truth.

Class feeling, bitterness and anti-social talk can best be checked not by repression, but by replacing it with a knowledge of real facts and an honest view of conditions. Every teacher who can convince one pupil who has heard "red" talk in his home or on the street, that the best good of any individual is dependent upon the good of all, that the way to bring about changes in government is by regular process and not by bomb-throwing, has done much to eliminate "red" propaganda not only from the school, but from the homes back of the school, and finally from the whole community.

California seems to be troubled with disloyalty in its schools but very little. In fact, throughout the trying period of the war, when people were watching every person suspected of disloyalty, there were but two teachers in the whole state dismissed from the schools for disloyalty.

Through the great body of loyal teachers in the schools of the state much can be done and much is being done to offset the radical teachings of thoughtless men and women.

PROVES HIS OWN GUILT

The former Kaiser is undone. After all his frenzied disclaimers of responsibility for the war, he proves his own guilt. He becomes a witness against himself, because, along with his habit of reckless speech, he had the fatal vice of scribbling.

The inquiry into the causes of the war conducted by the new German government has dragged to the light hundreds of secret documents. There are bales of dispatches and reports that were submitted to Wilhelm, before and during the war, and annotated by him according to his custom with marginal remarks.

Typical of them all is the comment he penciled on the margin of a report concerning the assassination of the Austrian archduke at Sarajevo, two days after that event occurred.

Ambassador Tschirschky, at Vienna, had written: "I have repeatedly heard here, even among serious people, that there must some day be a thorough reckoning with the Serbs." To this Wilhelm added the words, "Now or never!"

When the ambassador wrote that he had "seized every occasion in order quietly, but very firmly and seriously, to warn against any hasty steps," the indignant and hasty Kaiser added, "Who authorized him to do this?" This is very stupid. It is no business of his. If afterwards things go wrong we will be told Germany was unwilling. Tschirschky will please stop this nonsense. Accounts must be settled with Serbia, and that soon!"

And for five years Wilhelm has persevered in the lie that neither he nor his government had anything to do with Austria's treatment of Serbia, which brought on the big war. It is the same with dozens of other matters involving the question of war conspiracy.

Those marginal notes will be heard from when Wilhelm is put on trial before an Allied tribunal.

On Free Speech

San Bernardino Sun

In holding that the freedom of speech guaranteed by the constitution is subject to limitations a justice of the United States court of appeals defines as law just what common sense dictates law should be.

In the case in which decision was rendered the defendant had obstructed the operation of the draft law by asserting that men were too old to enter the army, and when brought to bar for his utterances, set up the constitutional guarantee against the abridgment of freedom of speech as his defense.

The court held that conditions of war subject individual rights to qualification. Thus, if the accused in peace had a right to talk as he did, he lost it in war. It is the view of the court that speech that might be permissible in peace may be prohibited in war. It would seem to follow also that there ought to be some exceptions to the freedom of speech in time of peace, though it might be exceedingly difficult to establish the line between what is proper and that which is outside the pale of the constitutional warrant. Of course, freedom of speech at no time includes the privilege of uttering that which is indecent or of advocating an act which is unlawful.

It is sometimes true that what appears to be the proper limit of free speech may seem to be transgressed, yet an attempt to restrain such utterances by legal procedure might be greater injury than good. But there is another class that takes advantage of our free speech leniency for whom grace should not be granted.

It seems clear that it was never intended that this provision of the constitution should extend to permission to anarchists to advocate the destruction of government and civilization as well, and that would apply in peace as well as in war. Liberty does not mean license and freedom of speech should not include permission to advocate doctrines that are subversive of law and morals. Yet in applying the measure to determine on which side of the line an utterance lies, care must be exercised that only a just and legal standard be used lest we err in restricting improperly a bulwark of our liberties.

Religion

Visalia Delta

Religion is getting to be a business proposition. The religion that we refer to is the brand that has real Christianity in it. There is only one system in the world that pays, and that consists in being decent, fair, charitable, liberal, industrious, progressive and helpful. These things constitute the foundation of Christianity. Christianity is not a bargain counter commodity. You can't buy it at any price when the price consists of gold. It is as free to the humblest washerwoman in the land as it is to the millionaire. When we get so we can distinguish between theology and Christianity we will have made a big step.

Canada Stays Dry

Berkeley Gazette

The result of the effort to overthrow prohibition in Ontario, Canada, gave very little comfort to the newspapers which have been contending that the return of the soldiers would be the death of prohibition.

After a three years' trial the province of Ontario, Canada, is satisfied with prohibition.

On October 20, electors voted on four questions:

First—The repeal of the Ontario temperance act, meaning reinstatement of the license system. The vote stood: Yes, 223,874; no, 588,511.

Second—Allowing sale of two and one-half per cent beer in government agencies—243,802 voted yes and 479,275 voted no.

Third—Allowing sale of two and one-half per cent beer in standard hotels—235,192 voted yes and 493,275 voted no.

Fourth—Allowing sale of liquors of all kinds in government agencies—227,580 voted yes and 453,445 voted no.

Every question was answered in the negative by huge majorities. Dr. majorities will be increased when full returns are received. Question 1 will have over 300,000 majority; question 4, about 200,000.

SPENDING MONEY LIKE WATER

President Barrows

In the unanimous selection of David Prescott Barrows as president of the University of California, the regents of the university have at least made a choice which has the primary virtue of popularity. Among the students and alumni of the university and the people at large, Dr. Barrows was unquestionably so far first choice that if the office were elective he would have been the only candidate considered at all. If this were Dr. Barrows' only qualification it would of course not be conclusive, but it is very important one. Two of the most essential responsibilities of the president of the university are to lead the student and to represent the university to the people. In both these respects, Dr. Barrows' qualifications are uncontestedly pre-eminent. He is a virile, decisive man of the Roosevelt type, whose vigor does not detract from his charm and loveliness, and he is an idealist of the highest but at the same time most practical sort.

However, it is not merely on popularity that Dr. Barrows' qualifications rest. He is a man of already distinguished career and accomplishment. He combines, as a university president must, the training of scholarship and of practical affairs. His vocation has always been teaching, but his executive avocations have been many and important. He was for six years director of education of the Philippine Islands, and for as long a period of the faculties of the University of California, in direct executive charge, under the president of the university. During the year of President Wheeler's absence in Europe he served as acting president. As a scholar, he has had three specialties, but they were three sides of one specialty—in the Kansas phrase, "just folks." He took his doctorate in anthropology, has written books on Indian and Philippine ethnology, and has been professor of education and of politics. These approach the human animal from pretty much all sides. Twenty years ago, when President Wheeler took office the Republican published an editorial on "A Modern Greek" pointing out that President Wheeler's scholastic background was appropriate, not for the deadness of the Greek language, but for the livingness of the Greek ideal of the all-around development of the human being. In even more direct and modern way, President Barrows has, it is clear, approached the human animal from pretty much all sides. Social Events

AS THE DAY BREAKS

I pray you, what's asleep?
The ill pads, and ruffles and the reeds;
No longer inward do the waters
creep;
No longer outwardly their force recedes.
The widowed Night, in blackness wide and deep.
Resumes her weeds.

I pray you, what's awake?
A host of stars, the long,
long milky way
That stretches out, a glistening silver flake.

All glorious beneath the moon's cold ray.

And myriad reflections on the lake.

Where star-gleams lay.

I pray thee, what's astir?
Why, naught but rustling leaves, dry, sere and brown;

The East's broad gates are yet
a dusky blur.

And stars-gems twinkle in fair
Luna's crown,

And minor chords of wailing winds that were Die slowly down.

I pray you, what's o'clock?
Nay, who shall answer that but gray-tooled dawn?

See how from out the shadows loom you rock.

Like some great figure on a canva drawn;

And heard you not the crowing of the cock?

The night is gone.

—Ernest McGaffey.

Many Attend S. S. Convention

Eighty-three delegates from the Sunday schools of Orange county registered at the state Sunday school convention at Whittier this week. Of this number thirty-four were from Santa Ana.

Two general secretaries from outside of Southern California, besides experts from various denominations represented here, instructed and led the delegates.

Rev. Hugh C. Gibson, formerly pastor of the M. E. church at Huntington Park, is general secretary and the old corps of officers with H. M. Patterson of Los Angeles as president, were re-elected. Mrs. R.
W. Jones, president of county organization and Prof. Carl Knops of Fullerton were elected to the state executive committee from Orange county.

Rev. J. G. Kennedy, of Santa Ana is the other representative of the executive committee from this country.

Over 1800 attended the sessions of the convention.

Courtesies to Popular People.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl V. Newman, who have recently moved from Santa Paula to make their home in Tustin, have been the honored guests at various social courtesies prior to leaving for their new home, where they are sure to be welcome additions to both Tustin and Santa Ana society.

Mr. Newman has taken charge of the Sherman Stevens orchards, the San Joaquin Fruit Company's holdings in Tustin district. He is an authority on "Biology" having had charge of the big Limonera ranch insectary, which is considered as the last word in regard to bugs and their fads and fallings in the way of eating up young lemon trees.

A friend of Mrs. Newman in Santa Paula writing to this city pays tribute to Mrs. Newman in the following words, also telling of several social events in the Newman's honor:

"Mrs. Newman is one of the 'real-est' women you ever knew, and if you come into contact with her, and I think and hope you will, you will see why every one here regrets her husband's business advancement which takes them away from Santa Paula. She is a club woman, but not enough so as to prevent her from being the mother of two fine little boys. She has been very active in the Association of Collegiate Alumnae here and in social life.

"Just before they left here our dancing club had its regular dance for November and both Mr. and Mrs.
Newman were particularly honored guests, he coming up to help in their removal to their new home. Then, this week, the members of the Tuesday bridge club met at the home of Mrs. A. A. Goodyear on Santa Paula street for a sup of afternoon coffee and Mrs. Matthew Henry Butcher, the president of the Ebells, presented Mrs. Newman on behalf of the club members, with a handsome lavaglier, a token of the many happily hours the ladies have spent together."

Veteran Rebekahs Enjoy Meeting.

About twelve Veteran Rebekahs met at the home of Mrs. I. D. Mills at Orange, yesterday afternoon, at which place they held their regular meeting with Mrs. Mills and her sister, Mrs. Eunice Horton.

Charming Bridge Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Lester L. Carden, 1421 Bush street, entertained last evening with a charmingly appointed dinner and bridge party.

Delicate pink carnations and aspargus fern gave a dainty appearance to the dinner table, where the following guests were seated: Dr.
and Mrs. W. A. Flood, Mr. and Mrs.
Edward McWilliams and Mr. and Mrs. William Spurgeon.

Following the dinner bridge was enjoyed, prizes being awarded to both Dr. and Mrs. Flood.

ville Courier-Journal.

Just What He Wanted

"Why did you get such a fine house?" asked the friend after the host had proudly shown him round.

"It was this way," said the host, casting a cautious look around to where his lady was inspecting and condemning the gardener's work.

"The property was for sale, so I brought my wife to see it. When she had looked around the house and gardens and admired the views from the windows, I asked her what she thought of it. 'Henry,' she replied, 'it is so pretty it leaves me speechless!'" — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Despite the stormy weather a large number of people viewed the cutout chassis of the 1920 model of the Maxwell displayed at the corner of Fourth and French streets. The engine of the machine is operated by the self-starter. All working parts are exposed, giving an excellent opportunity to learn the performance and important bearing of each part of the mechanism to the general operation of the Maxwell.

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 6.—The monthly meeting of the Tustin Twelve will be held with Mrs. J. A. Graham, 503 East Third street, Long Beach, next Tuesday. A pleasant time is anticipated and the members are requested to meet at the city hall in Santa Ana at a quarter of 11 o'clock in the morning and go in a party to Long Beach and spend the remainder of the day with Mrs. Graham.

A meeting of the Tustin Literature Section was held Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. A. H. Stutman. For the afternoon's lesson the writings of Gean Stratton Porter and Zane Grey were taken up, also interesting parts of their lives. A pleasant social time followed the study and the hosts served dainty refreshments.

The annual business meeting of the Presbyterians' Berian Bible class was held Thursday afternoon at the manse. In spite of the rain a goodly number were present. The meeting opened with a song service. Devotional exercises were led by the president, Mrs. J. W. Dryer. The business part of the meeting was conducted by Mrs. G. W. Pollard. Motion was taken to send $10 to the Orphanage at San Anselmo. The treasurer was not present, but sent a report of enough finances to cover this gift for the children at Christmas.

The matter of again inviting the Men's Brotherhood class to join in a review of the Sunday school lessons was discussed. The date coming on New Year's eve, motion carried to hold a "watch meeting." The usual prayer meeting and review of the lessons will be followed by a social time and light refreshments will be served. Committees were appointed to make candy bags for the Christmas entertainment. The January meeting of the class will be omitted. On the first Thursday afternoon in February the meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Heard. An enjoyable time followed the business, during which a number of those present gave interesting short recitations and readings, little stories, both amusing and serious, making the time pass quickly and pleasantly for all present. Later the hostess, Mrs. McDougall, served grape ice and cake.

Mrs. Clayton Platt of Los Angeles was visiting old friends in Tustin on Wednesday.

Mrs. M. V. Johnson, who has been superintending walnut gathering on her ranch for the past two months, returned to her home in Los Angeles this week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Stanley and Mr. and Mrs. Lou Allen and families enjoyed a trip to El Monte at the weekend.

Geo. Watterhouse of Long Beach spent Sunday with Clarence Bowman.

Mrs. E. E. Smith is making a two weeks visit at San Diego.

Mrs. Thos. Fleshner is spending the week in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Eby of Los Angeles and Mrs. Emma Moore of Lincoln, Neb., were recent guests of Mrs. Geo. B. Prather, Sr.

There will be a meeting of the Tustin W. C. T. U. on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 11, at the home of Mrs. L. A. Cock.

GUG G. RICHARDS & S. A. ELKS AID W. G. HAGEN IN REALTY FIRM AT REDONDO

Practical Ranchers and Business Men Specialize In Good Citrus Groves

Each partner backed by years of experience, both as ranchers and business men in this vicinity, Guy G. Richards and Wm. G. Hagen have entered the real estate business together under the firm name of the Orange Realty Co., with office temporarily at 136 North Glassell street, Orange. Both men are widely known in Orange and Santa Ana district and they will specialize in good orange and lemon groves, believing that their practical experience in ranching in this territory will be of value to both sellers and buyers of ranches with whom they deal.

Richards, especially, is well known in Santa Ana, having conducted the Fourth Street Market here for two years, and living at 432 South Broadway. Previous to coming to Santa Ana he was for several years a resident of Orange and vicinity. Hagen lives at Orange and made a wide circle of friends while engaged in the furniture business there. He disposed of his furniture store a few months ago.

The new realty firm expects to carry on its business along the lines of successful real estate firms in other communities and with unlimited confidence in the future of the district, the partners have launched a campaign of publicity and exploitation which will no doubt result in stimulating the progress of their field and incidentally, in boosting their own business.

PAID HER DOLLAR A WEEK, WIFE CLAIMS

Allegations that her husband, Leonard B. Rowell, who was not in court, had threatened her in a cruel and inhuman manner were made by Adeline J. Rowell before Superior Judge West and today she was free of marital bonds, having been granted an interlocutory decree.

The plaintiff testified that at times her husband had called her vile names and that on other occasions he had struck her about the head and shoulders.

Mrs. Rowell stated that she and her husband had been married for five years and during that time he had purchased for her use only a sweater, a hat and a pair of shoes. Her mother and mother-in-law had clothed her—and provided for her during her married life, the witness said.

Another of the plaintiff's allegations was that her husband allowed her only a dollar a week for spending money.

Mrs. Tresa Thomas, mother of the plaintiff, took the stand and testified that her daughter's husband suffered from stomach trouble and that he had informed her that when he was in pain he was prompted to treat his wife in a cruel manner.

WALNUT COVER CROPS

Next year we hope to have some genuine Hairy Vetch for cover crop seed. It is vastly superior to the Oregon or Purple Vetch, and firmly believe will prove of great value to California orchardists.

This season the best cover crop seed available, in our opinion, is Scarified Melilotus seed. We still have a limited stock, and will be pleased to show same and explain its many merits to interested parties.

Excellent results last year were attained through plantings made in late February. Drop in and look at our seed.

Smart and Cal. Library Head Disagree in Views On Free County Service

ON Tuesday of next week the board of supervisors is expected to take action in the matter of establishing county free library service.

On November 18, last, there appeared in the Register an article written by J. S. Smart, president of the Smart and Final Company, wholesale grocers of this city, favoring what is known as the contract system for the formation of free library service, as opposed to what is termed the separate library system.

In a letter Smart has received from Milton J. Ferguson, state librarian, the latter takes issue with Smart on certain statements made by him.

In a letter written by Smart in reply to Ferguson, the former sticks by his guns and says that he does not care to enter into a controversy with Ferguson in the matter.

The letters exchanged by the two men follow:

"J. S. Smart, President Smart and Final Company, Santa Ana, Cal. "My Dear Mr. Smart:

"Your article in the Santa Ana Register of November 18, 1919, was called to my attention today.

"You prefaced your statements by saying, 'If I understand the law correctly there are three courses open to us, any one of which will produce satisfactory results so far as service to the people is concerned,' and added:

"1st. 'A separate library may be established entirely independent of any existing library. This library would have to be located at the county seat and virtually operated under state control as the state board would have the appointment of the librarian, purchase of the books, etc., etc.'

"2nd. 'One of the already existing municipal libraries could be absorbed and operated under state control as in the first plan mentioned.'

"3rd. 'The county supervisors may contract with one of the municipal libraries of the county to furnish the service required.'

"I favor the latter plan because it insures local control instead of state control."

"Please permit me to correct the misstatements. The law provides for only two plans for establishing county free libraries, viz., first, the separate plan under Sec. 2 of the County Free Library Law, whereby the county board of supervisors has control of the library affairs of the county outside of towns already having public libraries; and, second, the contract plan under Sec. 16, whereby the board of supervisors transfers county funds to a town library and the board of library trustees of that town completely controls the library affairs of the county.

"Your statement that 'the state board would have the appointment of the librarian, purchase of the books, etc., etc.' is entirely false. Sec. 7 of the County Free Library Law states clearly, 'Upon the establishment of a county free library the board of supervisors shall appoint a county librarian, who shall hold office for a term of four years, subject to prior removal for cause, after a hearing, by said board.'

"Sec. 8 of the County Free Library Law also states definitely that 'The county free library shall be under the general supervision of the board of supervisors, which shall have power to make general rules and regulations regarding the policy of the County Free Library.'

"Under Sec. 9, 'The county librarian shall, subject to the general rules adopted by the board of supervisors, build up and manage, according to accepted principles of library management, a library for the use of the people of the county, and shall determine what books and other library equipment shall be purchased.'

"Your assertion that 'One of the already existing municipal libraries could be absorbed and operated under state control as in the first plan mentioned,' is entirely erroneous. Such a plan does not exist.

"Your statement that you favored the contract plan 'because it insures local control instead of state control,' is again false in its implication that the state would or could have any control. That it insures local control is only true, for it would center the control of the entire library activities for the county in the city library with which the contract was made. The city library would receive the money paid by county tax payers for library privileges and the city would own everything purchased with the funds. The city board of library trustees would select and purchase the books for the county people and appoint the librarian."

"It is because of the results following from the 'local control' by a city of the library privileges desired by country people that eight of the twelve counties of California that established county free libraries under the contract plan have changed to the Sec. 2 plan that places the control with the county board of supervisors.

"It is so evident that you have been misinformed that I am taking the liberty of sending you a copy of the Library Laws of the State of California.

"I am sending a copy of this letter to the editor of the Santa Ana Register.

"Very truly yours,

"MILTON J. FERGUSON,
"State Librarian."

BANK ROBBERS WILL BE TAKEN TO PRISON

LOS ANGELES, Cal. Dec. 6.—With Herbert and Arthur Brown and Ed Hudson behind the bars in the county jail and Mrs. Arthur Brown and three children, all adopted, stopping with an aunt in Venice, the sheriff and district attorney today began the orderly preparation of the case which they expect will send the three alleged bank robbers back to prison.

The party arrived at the county jail late last night.

"I'm hungry," were the first words of Herbert Brown as he sat himself down in the sheriff's office. His appetite was satisfied with roast beef, potatoes and hot coffee.

Carelessness with the hands and teeth causes more deaths in America every year than carelessness with motor vehicles, says the U. S. Public Health Service. Keep the hands clean, free from germs, away from the mouth and visit the dentist regularly.

You Must Not Fail To Be There Is Word to P. T. A.

THE following notice has been sent out from Fullerton by Mrs. G. H. Goodale, president, and Mrs. Charles Harvey, correspondence secretary, of the Fourth District Congress of Mothers:

"The Fourth District Congress of Mothers is to meet with the supervisors at the courthouse, Santa Ana, Tuesday, Dec. 9, 1919, at 10 o'clock a. m. We hope at this meeting to secure the adoption of a resolution for the establishment of a separate county library which will be the next move taken, and, I believe, the final one as far as the committee is concerned. As it is very important that we have a large committee at this meeting, be sure to come and bring an interested person. So far we have been successful; we must not fail now."

"True the Supervisors appoint the librarian but from candidates nominated by the state commission.

"This in my opinion gives virtual state control and your assertions do not change my opinion.

"In my opinion also the Board of Supervisors could purchase an already existing library, thereby, absorbing it, notwithstanding your statements regarding the matter.

"Doubtless it is your opinion that an Orange County City Librarian would not be as much interested in giving Orange County people residing in the county as satisfactory service as a librarian nominated by the State Commission, who may not be a resident either of the county or the state, would give, but I do not share your views in that matter.

"My chief objection, however, is the duplication of effort and expense.

"As you do not mention this, I presume that it does not interest you.

"I do not care to enter into a controversy with you in this matter, if the people of Orange county agree with you, they will no doubt get their separate library and, if so, I hope it will be a good one in which case Santa Ana will have two good libraries when only one is really needed.

"Yours truly,

"J. S. SMART."

Langley Urges Contract Plan For County Library

A communication has been received from Attorney E. T. Langley of Santa Ana relative to the county library situation. In that communication he refers to the statement printed last week in which Mrs. D. Eyman Huff of El Modena argued in favor of letting the library work out to contract rather than establishing a new separate county library.

Mrs. Huff said that the separate library will cost $17,000 a year, representing a tax of three cents on each $100 of assessed valuation of property concerned. In her communication Mrs. Huff said:

"What is the difference in cost of maintenance between the separate and the contract library?

"Approximately $10,000 a year in this county, since the permissible taxes for the separate library here is $17,000 dollars a year, whereas it would only cost from $5,000 to $7,000 under the contract plan."

Langley's Letter

Attorney Langley's communication follows:

"I noticed that most of the people who have been writing for the Register commence their communication by referring to the statement

"I have studied very carefully all that has been published in the Register concerning this question and I am well convinced that the statements by Mrs. D. Eyman Huff have been very carefully considered by her, that she quotes the law correctly and that her construction of the law seems to me to be correct. Not intending to disparage the fine article written by others, I come now and want to say that we are such a little county, such a happy, friendly, little county, that it seems to me to introduce an element that might in any way create inharmony.

Libraries Work Hard

"Our libraries throughout the country have taken so much interest in and worked so hard for the development of our whole county in every way that a library can work, in gathering books and materials for social, club, technical and school life by each reaching out a helping hand as far into the country as they possibly could, by borrowing and lending to each other in a neighboring fashion. And with our small county, there is scarcely anybody, with the present system of travel, the automobile, that cannot reach some one of our city libraries in a half hour's drive. The exception to this might be a small portion of the extreme southeast part of the county.

"That now to bring in a total stranger and say to them 'hands off, this is not your business now,' is extremely wrong.

"During the war price control was justified as a temporary emergency measure. But it certainly gets us into difficulties when it is kept up over a long period.

Involving a promissory note of $1129.11, given at Orange on April 15, 1915, a suit brought by W. F. Muffelman against T. C. W. N. and Nettie B. Wright today stood decided in favor of the plaintiff, Superior Judge Williams having granted him a judgment of $810.69, together with $125 attorney's fees. F. C. Drumm of Orange was attorney for the plaintiff.

Charging cruelty, Sadie Sweeney today was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Michael J. Sweeney in the court of Superior Judge Williams. The plaintiff was awarded $35 per month for the support of two minor children. J. C. Burke was her attorney.

BUCKS SNOW IN CANYON DRIVE TO ANTELOPE VALLEY

Linn Shaw Has Another Novel Experience on Trip to His Ranch

A Chandler automobile and a team in Antelope valley are the train that bring lots of sport for Linn L. Shaw and drag him from the daily count of his wealth as gained through the operation of a real estate office giving him excitement and interest that revive him for his daily grind when he returns to the quietness and hum-drum of city life.

Shaw has had all kinds of sport chasing his Chandler over the plains of Antelope valley after rabbits, coyotes and antelopes, and his latest experience is in bucking snow with his car on a trip to the valley.

Shaw left here early one morning recently for a trip to the ranch. He pulled out from here while it was raining and slid from the rains in this vicinity and Los Angeles into a hard wind in the San Fernando valley, his trip ending with a forty-mile grind in snow. Enter Bouquet canyon, the traveler encountered real snow, and the canyon was as pretty a sight as the one could ask for.

He bucked the snow for a few miles when he ran into a snow drift in the road that halted his progress for an hour, and called up playing manipulation of a shovel—and he used to shovel snow in his kid days before he landed in glorious Southern California.

Held Up By Slide.

Running into a slide where the snow in the road was about four feet deep, he found that he was unable to make any progress. The halt was near the Larkin's station in the canyon, and his wife advanced on the station and negotiated the loan of a shovel while Shaw attempted to release his car by pushing snow out of the way of his machine with his hands.

It is said that Shaw never worked harder in his life than he did while scattering the snow right and left. It was necessary to dig a trench fifty feet, and it was some job. When release was accomplished, he continued on his trip and traveled in snow all the way to his ranch, being the first car to go over the road after leaving Elizabeth lake. The valley was covered with a mantle of white, the first time he had ever seen snow there.

When he arrived at his destination every wheel of the auto was solid with ice, while snow was piled along the running board, on the front fenders and on the radiator. He traveled most of the distance in intermediate, not because he didn't have power to make it in high, but for the purpose of keeping the engine of his car warm.

Returns by Ridge Route.

Concluding his visit, he decided to return home by way of the Ridge Route to determine how much further it is to his ranch over this course than by way of Bouquet canyon. He found the Ridge route seventeen miles further, but the same distance as through Mint canyon, this road also being improved. Bouquet canyon is a dirt road.

The drive over the Ridge route is a pretty one and the grade is easy, but a little dangerous in rainy weather, and particularly when ice forms, as was found in many places when he came over it. This was the case in shaded spots and at one point he had to get out and throw

Old Market Hunter Tells of Quail and Deer Hunts In Early Days Near Here

FIFTEEN thousand and three hundred quail in one season and twelve thousand quail the next season!

That's more quail than there are in all Orange County today, yet those are the figures for the hunting done by R. B. Cook of 402 East Sixth street, Santa Ana, in the quail seasons of 1880 and 1881.

Quail season by law in those years was a period of six months ending in March and during those two seasons Cook hunted for a living. He could make more money doing that than he could at anything else just then, and so he hunted.

In those early days venison was not so much of a luxury as it was a necessity, and Cook hunted deer because it was a cheap meat.

Some of his experiences are here given in the Register's Old Hunter Series.

A SUCCESSFUL market hunter before he came to Orange county, it was the natural thing for R. B. Cook to do, when he landed in this part of California and struck dry years, to turn to hunting for market.

He did that very thing, and he made a business of it. He is R. B. Cook, and just as he has made a good farmer and walnut grower, because he went at it in a business-like way, so he was a good hunter.

His father before him was a buffalo and wolf hunter in the East before the family moved into the wild country of Monterey county in 1870.

It was in Long Valley, Monterey County, that R. B. grew up, and it was there that he developed into an excellent rifle and shotgun shot.

Hunting Antelope.

"Some of my first hunting," said he, "was for antelope. Antelope run in herds in the open. Of all the antelope I killed I never got but one range to another and were caught by daylight in between."

I had a sack of poisoned meat that I was distributing for coyotes, and had no gun, when I saw these bears lumbering along a trail toward me. I dropped the meat, hoping they would get it, but they did not touch it, and I ran for the house about 100 yards' away. Father and I got our rifles, and started out. The bears came into view of the house when they were not fifty yards from it, and just as we saw them they snorted, turned and disappeared beyond the rise, so that we did not get shot."

It was in 1879 that the Cook family came south with eighteen other

MARTLAND WILL SHOUT SQUARE DEAL GOSPEL FROM PULPIT

FULLERTON AND LONG BEACH ATTRACTING INTEREST

Will Lecture at First Presbyterian Church Some-time In January

Teams Evenly Matched and There Is Little to Help Pick Winner

Say boys, you of the Orange County Automobile Trades Association who are going to attend the state convention of the association at Bakersfield on Monday and Tuesday, carry this news to the bunch from all over the state—that Bob Martland, popular state secretary, is going to preach the gospel of fair dealing from the pulpit of a Santa Ana church sometime in January.

Rev. J. A. Stevenson, of the First Presbyterian church, was so impressed with Martland's doctrine as presented during the visit of the secretary and president of the association here a few weeks ago, that he has extended Bob an invitation to shout his gospel of square dealing from the pulpit of the Presbyterian church.

Martland has accepted, and the date will be governed by the secretary's visit to the southland some time in January.

It probably will be the first time a trade representative advocating what the California Auto Trades Association stands for ever has addressed a Sunday church audience in Santa Ana.

Martland has a true story to tell involving a principle that should dominate in all lines of endeavor, that when they were not fifty yards from it, and just as we saw them they snorted, turned and disappeared beyond the rise, so that we did not get shot."

It was expected a big crowd would be on hand when the game started, at 2:30. Interest in the contest was keen. Local "dopesters" held that Long Beach had some what the edge on the men from the oil fields.

Nearly Evenly Matched.

However, there was little to choose between the two teams, as the records of both were impressive. The Fullerton team averaged 162 pounds, and the Long Beach men ran close to that mark.

A passing game, which it was thought would cause considerable trouble, had been developed by the Fullertonites. The pair of demon passers, Arch and John Hawkins, had been flinging long tosses for touchdowns all season, and it was considered certain Fullerton would depend a great deal on their passing game this afternoon.

Against the beach boys only four points had been scored, in seven games, while they themselves registered 258 points. Fullerton had scored 241 points in nine games, as against 39 for its opponents.

At Long Beach this week Coach Ed Kienholz took every precaution to see that every member of the beach squad was feeling "right" and on edge for this afternoon's game. Kienholz did not overtrain his charges, and it was said he would send the strongest lineup of the season against Fullerton.

Beachers in Shape.

LeFebvre of the Long Beach team was rapidly rounding into shape this week and Tierman had fully recovered from an injury of a week ago.

Ebsescher, substitute half, who was injured in a game with Coronado, was back in harness and available for today's contest.

At a parade and trip to the oil fields and bluffs at 10 a. m. will be the forenoon feature Tuesday, with a general meeting at 1:30 p. m. and dinner-dance and entertainment at 7 p. m.

In connection with the parade Tuesday morning a thriller is to be pulled at the bluffs, when one or two high powered automobiles will be shot over the precipice for the education of the guests. The plunge is 1000 feet and the stunt will be something never pulled outside of the movies.

Following are the relative strengths of the two teams:

Noted Artist Designer of Red Cross Christmas Seal

Ernest Hamlin Baker and baby daughter.

Cheery Little Sticker to Raise $6,500,000 For Fighting Disease

The cheery little Red Cross Christmas sticker is the symbol of the country-wide fight against tuberculosis and the sale of the seals is conducted by the National Tuberculosis Association, which is back of the campaign against the disease.

The seal design this year is a particularly happy one, that of genial faced Santa Claus with his pack clearly outlined against a blue sky.

Mr. Baker came down from Poughkeepsie to the Big Town with his wife, $250 of borrowed money, a college education, two years' experience in newspaper cartooning and art knowledge acquired in a $15 correspondence course," to quote his own words.

It was when he got down to his last lonesome nickel that the tide of his fortunes turned. "I tried to sell a group of caricatures of noted Europeans to several magazines, but none of them would have it," he said.

"In despair I left it with one of the leading comic weeklies, and retired to the home nest to count that last nickel.

The next morning the telephone rang. The editor desired to see me.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Weak Links In A Strong Chain

That's just what imitation parts are when they become a part of your Ford car. They look strong enough, but the metal isn't there—the strong, durable Vanadium steel that goes into the Ford chassis and every Ford part. Ford parts are specially cast and heat-treated, each according to its use. Some require a hard, flint-like wearing surface, others need resiliency, and some need just "toughness."

Ford metallurgists have been studying these problems for sixteen years and know just how each unit should be made to endure a maximum of wear and tear. They know that best results can be obtained only by use of special formulas for different parts, and that honest Ford parts wear from thirty-five to one hundred per cent longer than counterfeits.

We carry complete assortments of genuine Ford parts for both passenger cars and trucks. And our garage is equipped to give careful, prompt Ford service—from minor adjustments to complete overhauls. Drive in, it's better to be safe than sorry. Come to the Authorized Ford dealer for service.

SCENIC TRABUCO CANYON ROAD WILL OPEN MARK HUNTER TALKS ABOUT DEER, QUAIL

Highway Will Be Ready For Motorists During the Coming Summer

LIKE the man who, with his house built, painted and furnished, can turn his thoughts to the beautifying of the grounds, the southern part of the State of California, county by county, is turning its thoughts to the opening of new little scenic tours which mean "charm" in any section.

With the great paved system of state highways provided for, with many of the counties satisfied for the time being with their own paved road system, each is vying with the other to see which can open the most attractive scenic mountain journeys. For the most part, these little tours are closely connected with the camping space idea, and new road idylls lead to camping idylls.

A new motorist's paradise and a camping ground in Southern California will be thrown open to the public by the coming summer, with the completion of road construction work into the Trabuco Canyon north of El Toro in Orange County. Long a favorite hunting ground with a few experienced hunters who are familiar with the mountain fastnesses to be found there in the shadow of "Saddle Back" peak, this primeval country will now be available to the motorists. Not alone will a scenic mountain drive be provided, but a public camping ground will be established and opportunity will be given for campers who want a permanent summer home in the mountains to rent from the National Forestry Service a plot of ground, and on it to erect a cabin to their own liking.

U. S. to Have Charge.

This beautiful country is being made available to the motorist through the efforts of the Supervisors of Orange County and the National Forestry Service. The two have combined in providing funds for road construction work, and the United States government will have charge of the actual construction. A survey of the proposed road has just been completed, under the direction of Engineers A. W. Sands and E. A. Reinke in co-operation with J. B. Stephenson, ranger of the Cleveland National Forest, and in a very short time actual construction work will commence. Owing to the fact that a very good road already exists for a large portion of the distance, and also to the fact that unequalled road-building material is at hand, the cost of construction will be kept to the minimum. It is expected that $7,000 provided for the actual work, half by the county and half by the United States government, will be ample to make a high class road into this new camp site.

Road to Modjeska.

The motorists traveling to Trabuco canyon will follow paved highway from Santa Ana through Tustin and Irvine to El Toro. From this point the regular road to Madame Modjeska's home is taken, and followed to the forkings of the roads some three or four miles from El Toro. The right hand fork leads to Trabuco canyon, over a well kept, high grade mountain road. At Trabuco school house the road forks again and it is from this junction, about 24 miles from Santa Ana, that the proposed improvement begins. The present survey follows the road which leads from this junction to what is commonly called the Old Tin Mine. About four and a half miles of fairly good road is already available. Construction work on this portion of the route will be comparatively simple, as widening and partial surfacing with cement sand from the nearby cliffs will be all that will be required. Fords across Trabuco Creek will be cemented, thus avoiding the necessity of bridges, and will, as a result, be more easily maintained during the months of sudden freshets.

Fork in Canyons.

About three-quarters of a mile above the Tin Mine the canyons fork, one leading up to the summit of Santiago Peak, (one peak of Saddle Back), and the other leading over to the Elsinore mountains, and overlooking Elsinore Lake. At the forkings of these two canyons is a broad expanse of level land which will make a camping ground unequalled. Running water is available in the creek the year round, and the finest of live oak and sycamore trees provide abundant shade. The quiet nook is almost entirely surrounded by mountain. Aside from this main camp site, numerous smaller and more secluded camp sites will be found where one or two cabins may be built. It is the plan of the present construction work to provide facilities at this camping point, known as "The Forks." Some kind of a water system will be installed, and public comfort stations will be built. Stone fireplaces and stoves will be provided.

Big But Rather Lean.

"I killed lots of deer up that canyon. I remember one that looked to me to be the biggest I got. I saw him with some does, and he certainly stood high. I crossed the canyon and ran up the ridge just over the crest until I came to where I thought it would be right for a shot. I slipped up to the edge, and there I was. My big buck sniffing the air not thirty-five yards from me. I got him. While he was big, he was not fat, but he was so big that I had not a lot of trouble getting his hind quarters pulled up high enough to the coyotes couldn't reach him before I got back with a horse the next morning."

"One of the best of many good hunts that we had was over in the San Mateo. My brother, O. B. Cook, who now lives at Riverside, and I rode there from San Juan Capistrano. We went into the canyon that comes in just below the Christians. My brother got his first deer on that trip.

"We were on the way down when a buck jumped up on the hillside, and we both got a shot just as he went over the top. We found him on the other side dead. We drew him and got him on to a horse, and when we saw five other deer in a pocket quite a distance away. We made a detour to get up to them, and in doing so we lost our butcher knife and our blankets.

families to settle in San Mateo canyon, where they expected to take up land. The families were, there for three years, struck dry years and had a hard time making livings, and in the end the property changed hands and they all had to get out.

"They had a hard time with their wheat and barley," said Cook, "and the question of getting something to eat was partly solved by the fact that deer and wild hogs were plentiful. Venison was a necessity. Some years before a drove of hogs had been left in the tules, and this drove increased and spread far back in the canyons. The young fat hogs were very good pork. The old boars were a vicious lot. After the farmers got to hunting the hogs for the purpose of exterminating them to prevent them damaging their crops, some of the old boars put up stiff fights. One of those old fellows could lay out three or four dogs without much trouble.

Shoots for Living.

"Work was scarce, and the first sheep-shearing season I went back up to Monterey and sheared sheep. When quail season of 1880 opened up I went to hunting quail for a living. I shipped into Los Angeles and got $1 a dozen. I made good wages, better than I could have done at anything else. The next shearing season I sheared sheep at a camp at the mouth of Santiago canyon.

"I was always a great hand to hunt by myself. Most of my hunting for quail and for deer those days was a matter of bread and butter, and while I was very fond of it, it was a necessity and not a luxury that caused me to do as much hunting as I did.

"I hunted for quail in the season of 1880 from the San Mateo south to San Diego, and in the season of 1881 from the Trabuco south. Part of the time my brother Elmer was with me. A good deal of the time I hunted alone. After I married and was living at San Juan Capistrano my wife used to drive up every day to the camp, get the quail I had killed, take them to San Juan Capistrano and send them to Los Angeles on the stage.

"The first year I used a 12-gauge gun, the next year a 16-gauge because it took less ammunition. I bought powder by the keg and shot by the sack. I loaded my buck shells in the evenings and at noon.

"The first season, that of 1880, Elmer and I camped for two weeks at Old Town, near San Diego, and hunted up the Mission Valley, and for that two weeks we averaged ten doves a day.

Horse Is Trained.

"I used to get tired of hunting, and I'd change locations as often as possible in order to break the monotony. Quail in the western canyons were thick anyhow, and there was plenty of shooting. I liked to hunt on new ground every day. I had a buggy and a sorrel horse named Celin. Celin was trained. We'd no sooner come into a bunch of quail than he would stop short, and there he would stand until the shooting was over. I'd leave him standing sometimes two or three hours. I afterward sold him to a Santa Ana grocer named Snyder, and Snyder said the old horse driving through the hills would always stop when quail flew up.

"In the Trabuco, the San Juan, Gobernador and Christians canyons in the season of '81 I averaged seven dozen a day. But I worked at it. I was out at daylight and hunted until dark. In the season of 1880 I shipped 1,275 dozen quail, of which I killed at least three-fourths and in 1881 about 1,000 dozen.

"When we were in the San Mateo and it seemed time for someone to bring in some venison, I'd start out afoot and hunt up the canyon. I was always liable to find a deer at any time after leaving home. I'd hunt afoot, and afterward come back and get the horse or horse and wagon and bring in the game.

Beats Brother to It.

"When we came up to the pocket, up jumped a fine buck. My brother was right between me and the buck and I couldn't shoot. He got in a shot and the buck dropped. Just then another came up, and another, and a third. Without intending to beat him to the shots, I fired at the first and dropped him. My brother had aimed, and I beat him to the shot. He aimed at the second, and I beat him again. He aimed at the third, and I shot again and dropped the third. I was in such a position that I hadn't noticed that he was aiming.

UNCLE HENRY SAYS LIGHT UP STREETS

The old man glanced reflectively toward the corner of Fourth and Sycamore, to see whether his "gals" were returning and whether he was in danger of having them catch him smoking his corn cob.

Reassured, he continued:

"Young feller, one day las' week I heard a couple o' rumors o' a phantom sprinter chasin' aroun' the track, out at Poly, nights. Peared like the runner wuz a young feller we was close enough will claw him. This dog would circle around and hold the wildcat, and several times I got close enough to kill the cat with it."

"I have used wildcats with rocks.

"I had a sheep dog in Monterey country who used to chase them, and when chased a wildcat will stop and face a dog, and if the dog gets close enough will claw him. This dog would circle around and hold the wildcat, and several times I got close enough to kill the cat with it."

"I have used fine fishing in the Trabuco. Once I was fishing in a fine pool there and had thrown several trout well back on the grass. Hearing something behind me, I looked and saw two wildcats. They had smelled the fish and were making for them. When I moved they saw us me and ran.

"I have hunted very little in late years. The difference in hunting now and what it used to be was emphasized when I went out with my sons the first day of the deer season this year. We went up the north ridges of the San Juan up toward Bell canyon, where in the old days we killed lots of deer.

"My brother got even with me for beating him to the shot with those three deer. It was a couple of years afterward, and he had gotten to be a good deer shot, and he shot a lot quicker than he did at first.

"We were up on the ridge between the San Onofre and the San Mateo when two deer started up, and he beat me to the shot with each of them."

"In the eighties and nineties I hunted deer often out of San Juan Capistrano. I remember one good hunt that Will English and I had when we got four deer in two days.

"I went up on the Viciton with N. T. Wood, pioneer bear hunter, who has a mine in the Trabuco and who was a partner in sheep with Judge Bacon of Capistrano. There was a wagon road away back up there those days. Wood was putting along with the wagon and I went on ahead on horseback.

"My horse snorted, and as I came to the top of a rise a deer started.

"I shot just as his front feet were doubled up by his head making a leap, and shot off one of his feet. I fired again and killed him.

"Wood a Fine Shot

"On that trip I followed a bear's tracks into some heavy brush, and we discussed following him into the brush. Wood was willing, and we might have done it had I not been tired out. Wood was a fine shot, one of the best I ever knew, but on that trip he did not get a deer. He didn't say much, but I knew he was not pleased with his luck, and we had no sooner reached San Juan Capistrano that he hit it off for the Las Flores country alone and came back with three deer. I saw him shoot at a deer disappearing over a hill once. I thought the deer was clear out of sight. He said he was sure he had hit it. I don't think it possible, but on going over the hill we found it. The bullet got the deer in the back of the head.

"I never saw a mountain lion in the open. I saw fresh tracks often.

"The closest shave I ever had was when I was on a horse and stopped until after the machine had passed.

"Speed on the route is not limited to 15 miles an hour by a long shot, according to Shaw, for many machines passed him on the mountain road traveling at 25 and 30 miles an hour.

CONFERENCE IS FOR TRAINING LEADERS

One of the most important gatherings of the leaders of Protestant churches ever held in California is scheduled to take place at the First Congregational church of Los Angeles, December 17, 18 and 19, in the State Training Conference for Christian leaders, conducted by the Interchurch World Movement of North America.

The six speakers who will lead the conference are all well known national speakers. They are the Rev. James E. Crowther of Seattle, Wash., pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church; Rev. William E. Doughty of New York City, director, Spiritual Resource Department of the Interchurch World Movement; Mrs. E. C. Cronk, New York City, secretary for Women's Work, Interchurch World Movement; Rev. C. W. Cherry of Rochester, N. Y., pastor of the First Presbyterian church; Dr. George A. Huntley, medical missionary from China, and Dr. W. R. Wedderspoon.

This conference in Los Angeles is one of a series of State Training conferences being held this month in every state. Representatives from every county in Southern California will attend this conference in Los Angeles. A similar conference will be held in San Francisco on December 15, 16 and 17.

The relation of the church to religious, social and economic problems of the day will be thoroughly discussed and plans laid for effective co-operation between the different Christian communions in meeting these pressing problems.

To make the Maxwell light they used the quality steels

THE story of Maxwell is a story of metallurgy. This great science makes possible a 1960-lb., 109-inch wheelbase, 25 h.p. car, whose common denominator is Quality. It has made possible a vehicle weighing but 1960 pounds itself to carry 750 to 1000 pounds of human weight a distance of 100,000 miles or more—to carry it at low cost and to carry its 5 passengers in comfort.

This is about 2 to 2½ pounds of vehicle weight for a pound of "human freight."

When you stop to compare weight for weight with other cars, and size for size you will quickly realize that the Post-War Maxwell takes a leading rank on the subject of light weight.

But this light weight of the Post-War Maxwell is not a matter of "trimming the weight," but a matter of metallurgy.

The use of this science in building 300,000 previous Maxwells has developed lighter but stronger steels, and that is one reason why the Post-War Maxwell has caught the public fancy as few cars in recent years have done.

The demand is in excess of 140,000 for the current year. Only 100,000 can be built.

Therefore, an early visit to look over the Post-War Maxwell may save disappointing days later on.

COMPLETION OF PAVED ROAD IS PROVIDED FOR

Contract Let For Six Miles On Santa Paula-Fillmore Road

Completed pavement over the great highway between Los Angeles and Ventura by way of Santa Paula and Fillmore is assured with the action of the Los Angeles county board of supervisors in accepting bids on the six-mile stretch of road between Castaic and the county line.

This is the last section of highway on that route to be paved, and although it is in good condition at this time, the complete paving between the rich Santa Paula section and Los Angeles is of particular significance to the entire southern part of the state.

When the work has been finished, the state highway commission will start the paving of the Conejo grade on the regular coast route to Santa Barbara, it is stated. This cannot be attempted until another satisfactory route has been provided for the heavy travel between Southern California and San Francisco along the coast.

Alterations to Be Made In Rooms at Corner Main and Sixth Streets

With the International Electric Company and the Rutledge Radiator Shop moving to new quarters, work will commence the early part of next week on alterations to be made in the buildings at the corner of Main and Sixth streets to adapt them to the use of Floyd B. Smith and L. Chasher as their salesroom for the Velle car and line of tractors and trucks the firm is handling.

Smith bought the property from

A. J. Visel and Henry Diers recently and since then has formed a partnership with Crasher.

The changes to be made in the quarters will make them attractive and ample for the business to be located there.

Joe Anderson, who recently dis-

This announcement has been made by the theft bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California following an investigation into the alleged mysterious and total disappearance of a number of cars reported stolen recently in the southern counties and of which no trace could apparently be obtained.

Private garage owners, while not really shielding the activities of the thieving gangs, are aiding them materially and unconsciously in their work by not reporting to the club's theft bureau or the police the renting of the garages to strangers for "storage" purposes, it is declared.

A well dressed thief will approach the owner of an unused garage in a residential neighborhood, saying that he wishes to rent the space for some repair work on his car. Then, having obtained the garage, his confederates will steal a car, leave it in the garage until the affair has blown over, when it will be stripped and its parts carted away to market. Not only is this custom being carried on in the city, but it is also true in the rural districts. Cars stolen in Los Angeles and other urban centers are often driven out into the country to some isolated garage and there the "dirty work" is done.

The club's theft bureau is particularly anxious at this time to hear of all private garages which are rented to strangers, and owners are requested to call up a club branch office or the headquarters and make such a report so that stolen cars may be traced in this way during the winter. In the summer time, the stripping work is carried on upon isolated roads, but winter weather usually forbids the practice.

HILL CLIMB SUNDAY IF WEATHER PERMITS

If it is clear tomorrow, hundreds of Orange county motorcyclists and autoists will go to Coyote Pass, near Los Angeles, to witness the motorcycle hill climbing event to be staged there at 1 o'clock. If the weather is not favorable the event will be postponed for one week, taking place a week from tomorrow.

GRANT MAKES HI IN SANTA ANA ON SHOWING

Model Is Rushed Here to Satisfy Flood of Inquiries

"Nothing less than a triumph." This was the tribute, and only one of many almost equally as complimentary, paid by the motoring trade and fraternity the past week to the "entirely new" Grant Six, which made its debut in Santa Ana.

Its initial appearance was made in the salesroom of C. H. McCausland, Orange county distributor.

The car is among the first "entirely new" Grant shown in California, having been rushed here to satisfy the flood of inquiries which poured in upon McCausland, following the launching of a national advertising campaign by the Grant Motor Car Corporation of Cleveland.

"People simply refused to believe until they saw for themselves that a car could incorporate so many unapproachable features as the epic at which the Grant has been brought out," McCausland declared.

"Now that they have seen the new

Grant and checked up on the car's appearance, its specifications and its easy driving and riding qualities, their skepticism has yielded to wonder at how the manufacturer could turn out such a car at such a price.

It would be hard to find a happy and delighted man than McCausland. "The car is more than

I ever dreamed it could be," he declared. "The more I examine it the better I like it, and the surer

I am that it will be a real hit with owners."

The new car appeared on the streets here this week and created a sensation by its attractive lines.

THE NEW SIX

The Car of the Hour

New Inspection System.

One great feature in the new Mitchell is a new inspection system. We adopted the system which the Government installed here on war trucks.

A large staff of trained inspectors watch and test each detail of the car. They guard against flaws, misfits and mistakes. They analyze our steels. They watch the mating of the gears, the balance of the crankshaft, the fit of the pistons.

Most troubles which arise in cars are due to oversights. Most service requirements are due to minor faults. One of the best things we have done is to eliminate them by this costly inspection system. There is nothing more apparent than this freedom from trouble. It means more than the big things, the strength and endurance.

Talk to any business person of broad vision regarding the things that make for commercial success and he will invariably pay tribute to his banking affiliation. This is so because these people have discovered that a competent bank is far more than a commercial warehouse for money and collateral.

They have learned that business problems repeat themselves in more or less similar ways in the lives of all men and institutions that are traveling the uproad of progress and that a wide awake bank's association with these business problems places it in a position to give helpful, constructive advice along the line of their particular requirements.

Business men appreciate the practical service we keep ourselves prepared to render and we shall appreciate your making personal use of these facilities.

THE CALIFORNIA NATIONAL BANK

ON DESERT ROAD AVERAGED 22.6 MILES TO GAL.

Traveling Salesman Is Here
From El Paso In Essex
Touring Car

Driving here from El Paso, Texas, and never hitting a paved road until he struck the boulevard between Imperial and San Diego, S. S. Turner has covered a distance of 2206 miles in his Essex touring car on 100 gallons of gasoline, or a little better than 22 miles to the gallon. He has had no expense for repairs on his machine whatever.

Turner is a traveling salesman for a house in El Paso and in the mileage he has covered he has visited various sections of that state, Arizona and California, including Flagstaff, Ash Fork, Prescott, Blythe and Niland, where roads are not the best in the world. He has had no trouble of any character, not even a tire change.

He stopped here this week at Townsend & Wyatt's, local distributors for the Essex and Hudson, and the members of the firm were deeply interested in what he has to say with reference to the performance of his car.

Essex cars were delivered by the firm this week to L. F. Sheets of Tustin and Perry V. Grout of Orange.

TRAFFIC LAWS TO BE ENFORCED BY COPS

The auto laws of California are going to be enforced, this is the verdict of police officers all over the state, as represented by the California Traffic Officers Association, the annual convention of which was held in Los Angeles this week. Prominent officers from various parts of the state were in attendance.

Here are some of the laws that will be enforced to the limit by police officers throughout the state, according to action taken:

The hand and arm signals; when signals cannot be seen by a machine fifteen feet in the rear, mechanical or electrical devices must be installed.

The headlight law. The headlight law: Where the lenses have been installed, according to law, the candle power of headlights must be lessened.

Driver's license: Any person, chauffeur or other person who drives machines and collects revenue from passengers, must take out a license as required by present laws.

Resolutions were adopted, and when taken before the state legislature next session that body will be asked:

To increase the penalty for all persons convicted of stealing automobiles from one to five years.

To increase the penalty to five years and to life, if feasible, for all persons caught carrying concealed weapons.

That each automobile owner be ordered to make a conspicuous identification mark on his car. Such a mark would assist the police in a hundred ways to recover the car.

THIRD LECTURE ON HISTORY OF SPAIN GIVEN

Miss Gulley at High School Points Out Features In 800-Year Period

An excellent lecture on the History of Spain, the second of a series, for the benefit of Spanish classes in the schools, was given by Miss Elsie Gulley in the music room this week at Santa Ana High School.

In part, Miss Gulley said:

Our purpose in the first two lectures has been to gain an understanding of the various racial elements out of which has developed the Spanish people of today. In this lecture we are to become acquainted with two other peoples who were to dominate Spain for a period of about 800 years. Though their influence on the Spanish nation of today was not to be as great as during the remarkable Roman administration.

With the decline of the Roman civilization, all Western Europe was to be overrun by German barbarians. Among those invading Spain in the fifth century the Visigoths were the only ones to establish a permanent kingdom, though we cannot forget the temporary sojourn of the barbarous vandals in the land.

The 300 years of Visigothic domination was a fruitless one for the Spanish people.

The tendency of the age was the scattering of population who became interested in agricultural pursuits, while industries associated with city life constantly declined.

The religious differences of the invaders and native population caused constant strife as the Visigoths had accepted Arian Christianity, while the Spanish were zealous adherents of the Roman Catholic church, which is still so powerful in the world today. With the conversion of King Recared to Catholicism, the last of the sixth century, Spain again came under the control of the Roman church.

Though it is said that the nation owes little to the Visigoths, yet some credit must be given them as the Spanish language is one of Latin roots and Teutonic grammar. A very interesting people, who still retain their racial independence are the Basques, who are situated in the northwestern part of the country. They are characterized by intense self-respect and have always been known for their high regard for women. So unique have they been in their history and institution that they have been the subject of many popular legends.

The Moors, the last racial element in the making of modern Spain, were the principal rulers from the eighth century until the thirteenth.

We should understand something of this great Mohammedan state which became so powerful in the world in medieval times. Today there are over 200,000,000 of this religion in the world and it is the strongest power against the spread of Christianity.

At first no attempt was made to convert the Spanish, the purpose of the invader being to plunder rather than to spread their religion. The Moors were then left in full possession.

One-fifth of the land was appropriated by the state and four-fifths by the Moorish soldiery.

During the rule of Abderrahman III (912-961), Spain entered a period of great prosperity. Armies and navies were organized, agriculture, industry, commerce, education, literature and fine arts were developed.

In 1031 the Moslem state came to an end and Spain became divided into a number of independent states, jealous of each other and eventually proved unequal to cope with the rising power of the Christian states.

In 1091 they were again conquered and reunited under Yusuf, emperor of a powerful African tribe.

The Mohammedans had developed advanced culture and civilization from the Byzantine of the Eastern Roman Empire.

Eventually the sympathetic relation of the two races, the Moors and the Christians became a passionate loathing of each other. In the tenth century the period of the Spanish crusaders took place.

After the capture of Toledo, one of the Moslem power's greatest strongholds, a different policy was adopted. The king encouraged industry and commerce increased.

By her former conquerors, Christian Spain was to be of benefit because of the fine spirit of opposition which existed for several hundred years. Even so, it is with a feeling of satisfaction that we have Spain as a Christian nation, taking her place among the other states of Europe.

As Christian and Moor came into closer contact, Moorish culture was appreciated and industry and commerce increased.

GARROWAY BUYS INTEREST IN BUSINESS

Becomes Identified With Damewood In Tire
Trade at Orange

A. J. Garroway, who has represented the Goodyear Rubber Company in this county for a number of years has purchased Ed Chapman's interest in the tire business of Damewood and Chapman, at Orange.

Garroway has tendered his resignation as representative of the Goodyear and on the first of the year he will take an active part in the tire business at Orange. He will give his attention to this end of the business of the firm, which will be known as Damewood and Garroway. Garroway knows the game from the ground up and is expected to further increase this branch of the business at Orange.

Damewood and Chapman will continue as partners in the truck business, which has developed in the county to considerable proportions.

These Are Values

Light Weight Economy, Fineness, Durability and Performance, Equaling Many of the Costliest

Essex Owners Admire

Exclude all the praise you have heard for the Essex.

Then ride in it, and judge for yourself. The uninfluenced verdict of the ride, will content us.

We urge this with a reason. For many who inquire about the Essex expect to see a large car. They expect to hear a costly price.

That is because Essex owners and admirers, invariably compare its performance to certain large, high-priced cars, notable for qualities of speed, power, hill-climbing and durability.

Its Fine Car Endurance

You will make those same comparisons yourself, after a ride. For only among cars of advanced price range will you find qualities by which to describe the way the Essex performs.

Certainly no one would think of rating it with other lightweight automobiles. Its appearance instantly settles that. It stamps the Essex in a class alone. Yet, neither is the Essex a large car. Therefore it offers the advantages of economy and liveliness exclusive to light weight automobiles. But it is also a reliable car.

Habitual skeptics, who never buy a car in the first year of production, fearing development of faults, now buy the Essex. In ten months, individual cars have rolled up 10,000 and 12,000 miles without any repairs whatever and more than 16,000 are in service, with more than 100 being added daily.

Its Charm In Action

Judge the Essex exactly as you would any fine quality car.
